

Beautiful pig skin shot pouch with intricate, blue/black velvet piercings. Based on an original.

Fine woven shot pouch utilizing a leather backed, linen flap plus whimsical, period decoration.

Handsome, robust, bark-tanned, knife sheath with interestingly designed, removable carrying strap attached thereon.

Rugged, tomahawk case with a single, historically accurate, intricately hand-sewn button closure.

Good looking, sturdy, hempen haversack. Constructed for hard and extended usage.

Professionally styled, hand-tooled, shot pouch boasting attached, custom made powder measure and blacksmith forged, vent pick.

Roughly fashioned wallet. Looks like it was cobbled together in some westerner's cabin from a scrap piece of bark-tanned leather.

Exquisite, vegetable tanned shot pouch displaying reinforced, fawn-skin, outer covering flap.

Need a well-made, durable pair of shoe-packs or moccasins? Chris is your man.

Well now m'lads and lassies, here's the deal. If you like what ya see, Chris Crosby can be very easily contacted on line at: ccrosby1969@live.com or you can simply give him a call at 765-481-4904. His prices are great; his workmanship is tougher than woodpecker lips. You can't go wrong with Chris... Nevertheless, I've got to warn you; copious numbers of serious, far-western borderer type enthusiasts such as ourselves soon discover, Chris Crosby's accouterments, primitive equipment, trail gear, etc. are indeed, quite pleasant to look at and contemplate. These poor, unsuspecting lads will on occasion, almost subconsciously/unintentionally relegate such wonderful pieces to the position of "cherished, historic artifacts" – not to be used but merely handled, admired and studied. So... You'll have to try your best to avoid that pitfall. 'Ol Chris likes his stuff to be taken out into the wild, used and used hard by those who truly appreciate the early frontier lifestyle – that's essentially why he makes 'em. MB
